From the pastor's desk . . .

This is an incredible story of a child of God who loved the Lord with all her being and humbly learned what forgiveness really means. This is a true story about Corrie Ten Boom.

It wasn't easy for Corrie Ten Boom to forgive her Nazi captors who had tormented her at Ravensbruck and had cause the death of her sister Betsy. Ten years after her release, Corrie ran into a lady who wouldn't look her in the eyes. Asking about her, Corrie was told the woman had been a nurse at a concentration camp. Suddenly the memories flashed back. Corrie recalled taking Betsy to the infirmary to see this woman. Betsy's feet were paralyzed and she was dying. The nurse had been cruel and sharp-tongued.

Corrie's hatred returned with vengeance. Her rage so boiled that she knew of but one thing to do. "Forgive me," she cried out, "Forgive my hatred O Lord. Teach me to love my enemies."

The blood of Jesus Christ seemed to suddenly cool her embittered heart, and Corrie felt the rage being displaced with a divine love she couldn't explain. She began praying for the woman, and one day shortly afterward she called the hospital where the nurse worked and invited the woman to a meeting at which she was speaking. "What!" replied the nurse. "Do you want me to come?" "Yes; that is why I called you." "Then I'll come."

That evening the nurse listened carefully to Corrie's talk, afterward Corrie sat down with her, opened her Bible, and explained 1 John 4:9. The woman seemed to thirst for Corrie's quiet, confident words about God's love for us, his enemies. That night, a former captive led her former captor to "a decision that made the angels sing."

This is an awesome story on forgiveness and redemption. My friends, I would like to leave you with I Peter 4:8, "And above all things have fervent love for one another, for "love will cover a multitude of sins."
